

Cookie Policy

What are Cookies?

Cookies are small text files that are stored on your computer when you visit a website. They are typically used to help the website recognise you when you return, or to keep track of the items that you have indicated your interest in. The cookies used on our website pose no risk or harm to you or your computer. In fact, they help guarantee that the high level of service you receive from us is consistently delivered throughout your online experience. Cookies help to enhance your visit by creating tailored browsing, specific to your requirements.

Our Use of Cookies

We use cookies on this site to collect information about how visitors use the site and to gather data to enhance its performance. This is important to us as we want to improve your browsing experience. Our cookies are not used to collect any sensitive information about you or anything that can identify you personally.

Cookies are not harmful to your computer and are used in almost all commercial websites. We do not use cookies to store any personal or sensitive information about you, nor do we pass any of your personal details to third parties. The cookies we use at www.Railholiday.co.uk and our associated websites are as follows:

- We use these cookies to remember that you have visited our site before.
- We use these cookies to aggregate information about how visitors use our site, this allows us to improve our site and make it better for everyone.
- We use cookies from companies like Facebook, in order for their users to get the most out of visiting our site.

Managing Cookies

You can manage your cookies preferences by adjusting your browser settings. You can delete or disable cookies and change your settings as frequently as you wish. Every browser is different so you can find out how to do this by looking at the 'Help' options on your browser. For more information on this you can also visit <http://www.allaboutcookies.org/manage-cookies/index.html>

You need to be aware that if you choose to disable cookies from your browser it may prevent you from taking full advantage of our website.
